

PEACEFUL END OF INCIDENT

Bombardment of the Fisher Fleet Will Be Settled by Arbitration Soon.

RUSSIA PROMISES A STATEMENT

Says That They Will Make Every Amends Possible for the Outrage by the Baltic Sea Fleet.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)

London, Oct. 25.—It is stated this morning that the situation growing out of the North sea incident has already been adjusted in principle. Russia has agreed to make every amends within reason. She desires, however, to make a full report. Balfour arrived at London early this morning. He conferred with Lansdowne and a little later drove to Buckingham palace where he had an audience with the king. After his visit, the king left for Newmarket. The latter fact indicated that the crisis has passed the acute stage, as otherwise the king would have remained in London.

More Conferences. St. Petersburg, Oct. 25.—The British ambassador is to be received this afternoon by Foreign Minister Lamsdorff and will present his instructions. The formal report of Admiral Rojestvenski is expected to be filed on arrival of the flagship at Vigo, Spain.

Makes Report. London, Oct. 25.—Count Benckendorff, the Russian ambassador, had a conference with Lansdowne at the latter's home this morning. Balfour was present. He held the foreign secretary's office to avoid the chances of hostile demonstration against the Russian ambassador.

Colliers Arrive. Vigo, Spain, Oct. 25.—Five Russian colliers arrived here; four others are expected. They are waiting the arrival of the Russian Baltic fleet. Two Spanish warships left for Estaca and Azores to preserve the neutrality regulations.

Sends Money. London, Oct. 25.—Queen Alexandra has sent to the mayor of Hull a hundred pounds for the widows and children of the fishermen who lost their lives in the recent disaster.

Has Orders. Cherbourg, Oct. 25.—The Russian warships in the offing have received sealed orders to be opened when three miles out at sea. The orders contain instructions as to their course.

London, Oct. 25.—As yet Russia has made no reply to Great Britain's demand for prompt and ample reparation for the attack upon British fishing boats in the North sea last Friday night.

Dispatches from St. Petersburg state that the czar received a report direct from Admiral Rojestvenski, but that the report had not been made public. The Russian admiral up to midnight had received no report from the admiral.

Russian diplomatic officials in St. Petersburg and London have expressed their personal regrets over the unfortunate incident, but officially Russia has given no sign.

There is apparently a disposition in Russian official circles to seek a justification for the attack on the fishing fleet. At St. Petersburg it is carefully explained that the government has for weeks suspected the presence of Japanese spies in the North sea, and that these spies might attack the Baltic fleet with torpedoes discharged from vessels disguised as fishing boats.

By a strange coincidence this explanation is urged in interviews by the Russian ambassadors at Paris, Rome and at Washington, as if a concerted effort was being made to convince the world that the Russian admiral was only using the ordinary precautions of war in firing on the English fishermen.

Czar's Envoy is Hooted. This explanation does not satisfy the British public. Popular indignation, which had been growing in June, tensity all day yesterday, reached its climax at the Victoria station last evening when the Russian ambassador, Count Benckendorff, arrived from St. Petersburg.

A crowd of about a hundred people gathered around his carriage, which was in waiting at the station, and when the boat train arrived and the count stepped on to the platform there was a murmur which rapidly swelled into something like a howl.

Amid the continuous hooting of the crowd the count stepped into his carriage and drove away, followed by a storm of yells. Several stones were thrown at the carriage and an attempt was made to break the windows.

After escaping from the hostile crowd the ambassador drove at a gallop to the embassy, half a dozen rowdies following. The ambassador arrived unharmed. His noisy pursuers encountered a cordon of police that had been hurriedly dispatched to guard the embassy. After slugging "Rule Britannia" the disturbers dispersed, no arrests being made; but the police continued to guard the embassy as if it were a British fortress.

Says It is a Deplorable Incident.

During the evening Count Benckendorff was seen at the embassy. He said he was ill with fatigue and anxiety, but he added:

"I authorize you to say from me to the people of England that I am absolutely certain that what has occurred was a deplorable incident and nothing else. Of my regret, and my country's regret, I am sure, unnecessary for me to speak."

The text of the demand has not been made public, but it is officially stated at the foreign office that it contains the significant announcement that "the situation is one which, in the opinion of his majesty's government, does not brook delay."

Further than this there is no knowledge of the demand for an apology and reparation. British opinion is divided into two camps. On one hand is a desire that the government will go to the length of demanding the recall of the Baltic fleet, but on the other hand there is a feeling that such action would be carrying matters to an extreme and would be regarded as giving direct and active assistance to Japan, a course which Great Britain as a neutral power is anxious to avoid.

To Demand Guarantees.

The preponderance of opinion last night was that the British government would content itself with demanding a full apology, the cashing-in of the officer or officers responsible for the firing on the fishing fleet, and an adequate indemnity for the damage done and lives sacrificed, with possibly a guarantee that in the future British ships shall not be molested in any way.

There is no question that the situation is one of extreme gravity. While a diplomatic solution will doubtless be found, the anger of the British public is so thoroughly aroused that almost anything might ensue if prompt reparation is not made.

It is but justice to the English people to say no other great country would have manifested the self-restraint which has been shown here. In the case of almost any other great power the fleets would have been mobilized within twenty-four hours after the news of the sinking of the North sea trawlers.

STUDENTS ARE ON THE RACK TODAY

Round Shoulders Are Bothering the Freshmen at the University.

(Special to The Gazette.)

Madison, Wis., Oct. 25.—There is an unusual number of cases of unequal shoulders and crooked spines among the freshmen of the University of Wisconsin. This statement was made yesterday by Dr. J. C. Elsom, physical director, who has given physical examinations to about 100 freshmen so far. This deformity is becoming more and more prevalent in the university and is due to incorrect habits of sitting and standing, especially during the growing age.

Dr. Elsom declares that little care is taken in the grade schools of this important evil. He says if the defect is taken in hand when the subject is ten or 12 years old, it is comparatively easy to correct, but if neglected until the university age, it is extremely hard to remedy. He has prepared a course of exercise for those afflicted with this trouble. There are prospects in view for a winning gymnastic team. The team is limited to six men and four of last year's team are back. This team is a member of the Western Intercollegiate Gymnastic association and competes with Minnesota, Chicago, Nebraska, Grinnell and Illinois.

COOPER SPEAKS THIS EVENING

Congressman From First District at the Opera House for an Address.

Congressman H. A. Cooper is to speak at the Myers opera-house this evening on national issues. He may, of course, say something on state affairs but if he follows the line he took at Beloit last evening his address will be confined principally to national issues, particularly the Philippines. Mr. Cooper arrived in the city this morning from Beloit and during his stay is the guest of Postmaster Oscar Nowlan. It is expected that Mr. Nowlan will also preside at the meeting this evening.

Cooper's address last evening was very moderate as to state affairs and he dwelt chiefly upon national issues. As regards the Philippine question there is probably no member of congress who is more conversant with the needs of that section of our government than Mr. Cooper. He spent the day greeting friends throughout the city. Mr. Cooper will be at the Myers hotel office at 7:00 this evening where he will be glad to meet his friends.

PREFERRED TO FLEECE THE JEWS

Claims To Have Been Born a Gentleman—Finds Odd Methods of Earning His Livelihood as a Bell Boy.

Chicago, Oct. 25.—In the arrest of a young man who was taken into custody an hour or more before his pretty young woman companion was placed behind the bars the police of the Central station say they have found a real "Raffles," who has secured nearly ten thousand dollars in valuables from Chicago hotels.

Lee Kurtin, bell boy, elevator boy, and would-be actor, is the young man under arrest. He is charged with robbing guests of Chicago's fashionable hostels. Miss Louisa Browne is also in custody, charged with receiving a portion of the stolen goods.

The detectives who have conversed with Kurtin say that he mailed the pawn tickets for stolen property to his victims, and they produce a dozen letters, all signed "Raffles," in proof of their statements. They also say that Kurtin has admitted his thefts, and smiles when shown the letters taken from his room.

Was Born a Gentleman. "You see I was born a gentleman, and when reduced to the necessity of stealing I did not want to inconvenience gentlemen," the prisoner is credited with saying. "I would rather rob a Jew than a Christian. So I figured that if I sent back the pawn checks the real owner of the property could recover them from the pawn brokers without any expense what."

When Kurtin went on the stage his salary was small, he says, and he felt the need of more money. Miss Browne was with him a great deal of the time, it is said.

Miss Browne says that she has a mother living in the city, but refuses to tell where. The young woman is exceedingly pretty and came from Germany eleven years ago. She is now 21 years old. She cannot read or write the English language.

Detectives Allcock and Russell arrested Kurtin, and $3,000 worth of jewelry and other articles were recovered. After a short talk with their prisoner they took Miss Browne into custody.

THERE IS BUT ONE CAUSE FOR DIVORCE RECOGNIZED

Episcopal Church Makes Stringent Measures Regarding The Divorce and Remarriage of Divorcees.

(Special by Scripps-McLain.)

Boston, Mass., Oct. 25.—The house of bishops and house of deputies of the Episcopal general convention reached an agreement Monday on the divorce question, the latter assenting to that section of the canon bearing on the remarriage of divorced persons as amended by the bishops.

If becomes effective at once, and is as follows:

"No minister, knowingly, after due inquiry, shall solemnize the marriage of any person who has been, or is, the husband or the wife of any other person then living, from whom he or she has been divorced for any cause arising after marriage. But this canon shall not be held to apply to the innocent party in a divorce for infidelity, provided, that before the application for such remarriage a period of not less than one year shall have elapsed after granting of such divorce, and that satisfactory evidence touching the facts in the case, including a copy of the court's decree, and record, if practicable, with such proof that the defendant was personally served or appeared in the action, be laid before the ecclesiastical authority; and such ecclesiastical authority, having taken local advice thereon, shall have declared in writing that in his judgment the case of the applicant conforms to the requirements of this canon, and provided further that it shall be within the discretion of any minister to decline to solemnize any marriage."

Bishops' Amendment. The bishops adopted an amendment to a section referring to the administration of the sacraments, providing that, if a clergyman shall have reasonable cause to doubt whether a person has been married "otherwise as the word of God and discipline of this church allow," such clergyman shall refer the matter to the bishop before administering the sacraments.

The deputies had made an exception in favor of the "innocent party divorced" on the ground of infidelity, who had remarried, but the bishops struck out the exception. Their action was accepted by the house of deputies.

Leading church men expressed the opinion that the restrictions placed upon the remarriage of an innocent party to a divorce are so stringent that the remarriage of divorced persons will be rare in the church hereafter. It is understood, however, that an attempt will be made to have the next convention specifically declare against remarriage under any conditions.

Retain Old Title. The house of deputies rejected a resolution to strike out the words "Protestant Episcopal" from the title page of the book of common prayer.

Both houses have appointed a joint commission to consider the advisability of electing a presiding bishop of the church. As president, the senior bishop occupies this position, and it is claimed that the duties are too heavy for an aged diocesan. The commission will report to the next convention.

INTENSIVE AND EXPANSIVE WAYS

OF DOING CHRISTIAN WORK COMPARED IN SERMON.

ADDRESS OF REV. DENISON

Method of Spending Much Time on Small Plot of Ground is Christ-Method.

That personal work and influence are stronger influences than sermons or ceremonies, was the message that Rev. Denison gave to his congregation Sunday morning in his address. "He took for a topic 'The Garden of God' and for his text, Genesis, 11:15: 'And the Lord took the man and put him into the Garden of Eden to dress it and keep it.' These words of the old biblical are a beautiful definition of life, and if what we call life, full of its ups and downs was as straightforward and simple as their life in the garden, we would be doing the work of God. Life's problems are a great deal deeper than external work, but every bit of improvement that is made, is made by a person who is doing the work of God. The women who makes life happy for the others by placing in the window of the miners' cabin or the shack in the wilderness is the confederate and co-worker of God.

Beautifying the Garden
The garden of God is the garden of humanity, and the work of God is making the lives of the men and women beautiful, and the thought of the garden of God is one that strikes deep—it is making beautiful the way around us. We first think the way to accomplish this is to beautify our own homes and souls, and next to beautify the plot of the earth around us. The common notion of commerce, is to do as much work as possible and is the reason of all the heat and clash and hurry in the world which would be unknown if we could but think as the old poet that our object should be in commerce to make the lives of others as easy as possible. So also is it with the religion of today which is put in our hands to beautify the world.

Expansive and Intensive
There are two kinds of agriculture—the expansive and the intensive—acres of growing fields and immense harvests. The other is the intensive where a great amount of attention is given to a small plot of ground as is done in the truck gardens of New England, and more particularly the farms of Belgium, and so there are the two ways of beautifying the garden of God—the great reformation and the spread of the Christian religion over the southern part of Europe, toward the fall of the Roman Empire, and the expansive methods and the intensive methods is the personal work, the spending of a great deal of time on a small plot of ground. This is the method in which the church now stands in need.

Twelve Deciples
Christ used the intensive method more than the expansive—he preached to large multitudes and in the synagogues, but the greater part of his time was used on twelve men whom he glorified with his own personality, and as he went out from this world he said I leave my work to you. From one end of the Roman world to the other was heard the story of his life. That was the result of Christ's intensive work. This method is the mother method, the one which the other uses in spending lavishly upon her children, her time and her influence.

Great Movements
All the successful movements for the uplift of humanity that have succeeded go back to the mothers of the former generation, who have spent their intensive influence on a small plot of ground. The mother method and the Christ method are the same. A university professor once said he did his greatest work when with his little circle in the class room when he exerted his influence on a few, and that he begrudged the time he spent in talking to large audiences, knowing that he was not doing all that he possibly could. He learned that the intensive method paid the best and the church has finally learned it. A young woman who had been going down a dark way of suffering and had come back to life, said to a priest who upbraided her for not having had the holy euclymen pronounced when she was near death, "I wanted some heat of light, some staff to lean upon that can come only from the love of a friend."

The Great Need of Persons
The great need of a person in the world today is some personal influence that will beautify his soul some intensive gardening done upon him. In the working man house it is some face looking across the dining room table three times a day that is an inspiration of righteousness that will lift him like the sea does a boat. The boy needs the influence of the school, the church and the club, but he needs more the influence of a Christian friend, a kind father, one that takes an interest in him who does some intensive gardening upon his soul.

General Need of the Day
The church exerts an influence upon its members but there should be stronger influence exerted upon them. Sermons of thirty minutes

Asthma Can Be Cured

The statement of Mr. J. F. Homan, 20 E. Adams St., Chicago, proves that the worst cases of Asthma in the world are not only relieved, but are readily cured by Dr. Schiffmann's Asthma Cure. He says: "Asthma kept me in terrible misery for ten years until I used your Asthma Cure. After the first trial I was a changed man. I went to sleep that night and awoke next day much relieved and I have gotten entirely over the Asthma. It is now nine years since I was cured."

duration may be strong and there are thousands of them preached each Sunday, but all the influence of these half hours one day of the week are hardly able to balance the evil and vice—the powers that pull down ideals that surround the members, the rest of the six days. Are these sermons able to kindle a fire or feed one on the culture of a man's soul, that will burn through the six days of chill and damp of evil. There must be a personal influence working upon the people continually—an exchange of Christian ideals, an evidence of patience and kindness.

True Intensive Work
To be an intensive worker one does not have to be a narrow minded bigoted Christian as were the saints of the middle ages who starved themselves, beat themselves in the street or begged. Their idea of this was to attract the attention and the interest of the people, but are there no better ways to attract and attract attention and influence? An upright Christian life will attract the attention more favorably toward the simple and straight-forward upright living than will those methods of rituals or pageantry. We spread our lives too far, lay our plans too big and hope too much and our efforts are lost that could be expended with profit on those around us. No man can do more than this, but each man may at least do that much.

Not Hell But Influence
The tragedy of a low, mean and licentious life is not so much the thought of the hell afterwards as the influence that it bears upon the life of the present day. To have the spirit of God is to be constant in the relation to God upright and true and to cultivate the circle around us and thus with brotherhood and peace will grow the garden of God around us.

WAR DISCUSSED AS GREAT EVIL

Communication Suggesting National Peace for the Whole World.

To the Editor: The peace congress at Boston and their work is highly commendable in showing the waste of money and the great injury to commerce. But the greatest evils of war to the human race they forgot to tell. War causes the degeneration of the human race by taking all the best young men of every nation to the battlefields to be slaughtered by the wholesale, leaving the criminal and meanest of the human race to propagate and continue the species. This leads to degeneration and the rapid increase of criminals, bachelors, consumptives, cripples, rickety-short-legged and bow-legged are left at home to propagate a degenerated race.

It has been said by spiritualists and their mediums that Adam was 10 feet in stature. Goliath was 9 feet and a half inches high. King Saul stood 7 feet in the foot. According to "historians" the average height of soldiers in the time of David and King Solomon was 7 feet. Dr. Warner recently examined the records of English soldiers and found their average stature 300 years ago to be 5 feet 9 1/2 inches. Dr. Altman, surgeon of the English army and navy, reported 20 years ago that their average stature was 5 feet 5 1/2 inches.

Cain slew Abel and was left to propagate and perpetuate a wicked generation. Christ was slain on the cross and the malefactor saved. Had Christ been saved and married a real half God, and the millennium might have come. Peace and good will to all mankind is Heaven on earth, but war is perpetual hell; worse than Dante's infernal regions.

Thus from time immemorial have the best of the human race been slaughtered, leaving the wicked to perpetuate the race.

20 years ago it was estimated by Burk that 14 times the entire inhabitants of the globe had been destroyed by wars. Dr. Talmage estimated that 35 millions had perished in war. Who can tell the effects of the past slaughters on the race?

Statistics show that criminals have increased at the rate of 25 per cent. during each decade for the past 50 years. During our civil war, 1861 to 1865, one million of our best young men were destroyed, leaving one million lady bachelors and only cripples and stumps for husbands.

England now has a surplus of one million women and the government is puzzled to know what to do with them. The best blood of the nation perished in the Boer war and all England is in mourning.

As to the war between the Japs and Russians I am in favor of letting them fight until New Years, then notify them to make peace between themselves. If they do not settle up in six months, the matter should be settled in an international court and let a treaty of perpetual peace be made among all nations. Let them keep their navies to enforce peace with. Standing armies would rapidly decrease or there would be no use for them. The oppressive taxes would speedily diminish, and the terrible waste of substance would instantly cease.

Now the pulpit and the press direct and educate the people—furnish brains for the masses. If they will advocate perpetual peace, it will come. I would urge all ministers to preach a peace sermon next Thanksgiving, Nov. 25.

A better and more thankful subject can not be selected. Then let the press do its part and perpetual peace will soon follow.

Human life is too cheap. The war between Japan and Russia is suicidal to both nations and should cease. Snail sacrificed two feet for her honor estimated value one cent. Russia is worth as much as Spain's was, or possibly 3 cents.

If the democrats will sell the Philippines to Great Britain and buy Canada, and make a ship canal from Detroit to Lake Michigan, I will vote their ticket.

ANNUAL BANQUET AND CELEBRATION

I. O. G. T. Lodge Have Feast and Program in Honor of Twenty-Fifth Anniversary.

In honor of the twenty-fifth anniversary of the formation of the People's Lodge No. 460 members and friends to the number of a hundred and fifty gathered in the hall last evening to partake of an elaborate repast and to enjoy a fine musical and literary program. The banquet was served by the young ladies of the lodge at 7:30 and done justice to by the full number of the gathering. The post prandial program was presided over by Chief Templar J. A. Canniff and opened with a musical number by Mrs. M. S. Kellogg and Arthur Fatales. M. S. Kellogg, district organizer, spoke of the work of Good Templary from the time when it was started over fifty years ago in New York state until it has now reached its present large proportion. A brief history of the organization in Wisconsin was included in the speech and a clear account of the formation of the People's lodge in this city in 1879 with twelve charter members, two of whom are still members and two others are residents of Janesville, but no longer members. The two charter members remaining are Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Canniff. Mrs. Daisy Athon read an original poem composed for the occasion and was rewarded with long and merited applause. Mrs. Dr. Elmer Schmitz of Milton, general secretary of the Juvenile Temple, spoke of the present work and showed how much could be accomplished by what had already been done, and appealed for the help and sympathy of the other members. Rev. Tippet gave a strong address and intensely interesting one on "Are Present Methods Sufficient to Banish Intemperance?" He dwelt on the evil that is born in and grows from the saloon and its influence and the number of young men who daily are becoming victims to this life. He declared that nearly every saloon in the city of Janesville kept its back door open on Sunday and hundreds visited each one on the day when the laws of the city say they shall be closed. His final conclusion was that prohibition prohibits and license does not regulate the liquor traffic. The program was closed by a musical selection by Mrs. M. S. Kellogg and Mr. Leslie Williams, who were forced to respond to the applause with an encore. The tables and chairs were then cleared from the floor and late in the night games were played by a large number of the younger members and guests while the elder ones present broke in little circles for sociable chats. The whole affair was a grand success and an occasion that will live long in the memory of each one present.

FOOTBALL MEN AT MADISON HAPPY

Game Next Saturday Promises an Innovation in Relations in the West.

The maize and blue of Michigan will be an honored color in Madison Saturday. A good fellowship movement, perhaps a novelty in western intercollegiate athletics, has been started with the end in view of making the Michigan team and rooters feel at home when they come for the big game. Although during 70 minutes at Camp Randall, Wisconsin's eleven will do their utmost to overcome the valiant team, the men from over the lake will be guests of honor and will be treated with the utmost courtesy and cordiality. The good fellowship movement consists in a score or more of the most influential Wisconsin students talking persistently to their fellows to "remember how Michigan treated us last year at Ann Arbor."

When Wisconsin goes to Minneapolis it is expected that discourtesies will be showered by the Minnesota students and the same unkindness prevails on the part of Madison when the Gophers in alternate years come here. Such is the negative cordiality between Wisconsin and Minnesota. The feeling between Wisconsin and Chicago is a little better. The Midway fellows are extensively thought of here as "whiners" and "sippers of Standard Oil," but such feeling is by no means general. Between Michigan and Wisconsin, however, cordiality is the prevailing medium and Wisconsin will remove hate to the visitors Saturday. Michigan did this to Wisconsin at Ann Arbor last year and the compliment of making the strangers feel at home and well cared for will be returned. The Badger students who are talking for the Alphonse and Gaston reception of Michigan say they were overwhelmed with courtesies last year. The Badger team was particularly kindly treated, and if this does not dilute the hardness of the knocks in the football game it will certainly cause the Badgers to show and excuse themselves if they kick opponents in the teeth or ribs.

The reason for Wisconsin's courtesy this year will be as a return for the kindness at Ann Arbor last year. The reason for the initial embrace, on the part of Michigan was suggested last year at a Bohemian meeting of the Friars' club, at which the Wisconsin athletes were entertained after the game. One of the speakers on that occasion declared that "Wisconsin and Michigan must stand together in athletics" and he declared with equal emphasis that by doing so these two institutions could dominate the western athletic world. In this connection it is considered that Michigan is too far up toward the frozen north to be effective in breaking any combination between Wisconsin and Michigan and Chicago must have games with the Badgers and Wolverines or distribute her schedule among little colleges. Such a situation developed a few years ago when Wisconsin and Michigan fell out with Coach Stagg over the matter of dividing the rich gate receipts of the games played in Chicago and after Michigan and Wisconsin had boycotted the Midway institution in athletics peace was made on the terms substantially proposed by Wisconsin and Michigan.

Because this feeling prevails, there will be such loving scenes at Madison Saturday as are seldom present when great college teams are struggling for the mastery surrounded by thousands of partisans. This has not existed long, for only a few years ago at the west side grounds in Chicago, Pat O'Dea, the celebrated Wisconsin kicker, was ruled out of the Michigan Wisconsin game for slugging an opponent, and there were years quite recently when Michigan refused to send any of her athletic teams to Madison.

How to strengthen the weak right side of the line is the problem laid out for the Wisconsin coaches in the remaining days of the preparation for the Michigan game here next Saturday. In the game with Drake Saturday it was lamentably apparent that the right of Center Remp, where Stromquist plays at guard and Finley and others alternate at tackle, was weak. The Drake team had the ball only a small part of the game, but it took only a few plays to discover a great hole in the Badger line. Stromquist particularly was called upon to assist the assistance of Remp. Stromquist might have been a wooden man. Such is the criticism heard from among followers of the Badgers. In some circles, haunted by the "knockers," as those who criticize are called, it is declared that Stromquist will be the brunt of the Michigan rushes next Saturday and that he will be unable to stand the racket. He has played right guard since early in the season, and no second eleven man has been given a chance at the position, the coaches believing he was the best available player for the place. A solution has been suggested—to place Remp at guard and play Stromquist at center, but this is not promising. It seems certain that several experiments will be made in the practice early in the week, but it is too late to do much shifting and the eleven that met Drake will doubtless be lined up against the Wolverines.

About one hundred cars of a new type passed through the city today to northern points for the purpose of shipping this year's crop of potatoes. The cars are furnished with a small furnace to heat the temperature to such a degree that the tubers can be shipped in them in the coldest weather without freezing. They were manufactured by the Stark Heater Car Company and are run over the Chicago, Grand Rapids, St. Paul, St. Louis, Pittsburg, Kansas City and Cincinnati.

R. C. Richards, general claim agent for the Northwestern road, has recently issued his report reviewing the number of claims against the company for the months of August and September. During the months of August and September the over, short and bad order reports 31 per cent. and the claims on local shipments 9 per cent. less than for the same period of time last year. He has issued a pamphlet giving road men special orders not to accept any freight that is not properly packed. The report for this year goes to show the improvement in handling freight. It is a difficult task to control a train of 40 cars when switching to keep them from bumping. But Mr. Richards thinks that the damages on local freight shipments can be reduced till more in the next six months.

Surveyors were busy near the J. Rosenmayer pickle factory in Madison Thursday afternoon laying out a new coal yard on the Illinois Central road for the benefit of some Capitol city merchants.

Within about two weeks the first edition of the railroad map of Wisconsin, issued by the state railroad department will be ready for delivery.

DO YOU GET UP WITH A LAME BACK?

Kidney Trouble Makes You Miserable. Almost everybody who reads the newspapers is sure to know of the wonderful cures made by Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the great kidney, liver and bladder remedy.

It is the great medical triumph of the nineteenth century; discovered after years of scientific research by Dr. Kilmer, the eminent kidney and bladder specialist, and is wonderfully successful in promptly curing lame back, uric acid, catarrh of the bladder and Bright's Disease, which is the worst form of kidney trouble.

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root is not recommended for everything but if you have kidney, liver or bladder trouble it will be found just the remedy you need. It has been tested in so many ways in hospital work and in private practice, and has proved so successful in every case that a special arrangement has been made by which all readers of this paper, who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent free by mail, also a book telling more about Swamp-Root, and how to find out if you have kidney or bladder trouble. When writing mention reading this generous offer in this paper and send your address to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all good druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

LABOR NOTES

Efforts to settle the lockout of the stonecutters in New York and its vicinity have proved a failure.

The United Mine Workers are making very good progress, with prospects for improvement in the future in British Columbia.

The next Chinese exclusion fight will be waged in Congress the coming winter by the labor unions of the Pacific coast. They will demand legislation that will protect American seamen from unimpeded importation of Chinese crews for service on vessels flying the American flag.

There is very little change in the strike situation in the Meyersdale district.

San Francisco (Cal.) Labor Council has approved the suggestion of its law and legislative committee that the records of all members of the last legislature on labor bills be printed and distributed for the benefit of voters at the coming election. It is expected that the State Federation of Labor will cooperate in the matter.

SCIENCE PREVENTS BALDNESS.
The Fatal Germ and Its Remedy Now Facts of Science.

It is the rarest thing in the world for a man to be necessarily bald. No man whose hair is not dead at the roots, need be bald if he will use Newbro's Herpicide, the new scalp antiseptic. Herpicide destroys the germ that cuts the hair off at the root; and cleans the scalp of dandruff and leaves it in a perfectly healthy condition. Mr. Mannett, in the Maryland Block, Butte, Mont., was entirely bald. In less than a month Herpicide had removed the causes of hair growth, and nature did its work by covering his head with thick hair an inch long; and in six weeks he had a normal suit of hair. Sold by leading druggists. Send 10c. in stamps for sample to This Herpicide Co., Detroit, Mich.

heartfelt gratitude, that the impediment of dumbness has been removed from my tongue. Such is my brief, but earnest, message to those who have asked us to come here and those who sit before us.

"The message of this exposition is to work for the education of all people, including the sightless, the deaf and the dumb."

"Now within the great halls stand not only model factories and works of art. Yonder stands the locomotive annihilating distance, and the illustration of the progress of irrigation, which has reclaimed the desert and in the halls of education we see how man has reclaimed his fellowmen and annihilated darkness. The Louisiana Purchase is a great manifestation of all the forces of enlightenment and all man's thousand torches burn here at once. The value of everything here is education. This exposition is what its distinguished founder intended it to be (at this point President Francis hesitated, and Dr. Dobyn of Mississippi took up the sentence and repeated it to the audience), a world university. Here we see the machinery side by side with the intellectual processes that begot them. The root, the process, the fruit. The fair is an epitome of what the world is. Here all nations of the earth are brought together, so that each profits by the expedience of all."

"We think no country since Eden has been so good to live in as ours. No nation, however, is as great as the sum of the achievements of all nations. All that is gathered here symbolizes the will of the American people that there shall be an open way to education at all, no matter how poor their circumstances or limited their capacities."

"The services of man to man shines like the stars of heaven. They appeal to the instincts of help, more deeply and firmly implanted in our civilization than in any other age. All that these great halls contain tells us that the world is on our side. The forces here displayed lift up my hands and support my weak feet. Science, nature and art say unto me, thou art deaf and blind, but enter thou into the kingdom of God. God bless the nation that provides education for all her children."

Following the talk of Miss Keller the two talented blind twins, Lester and Tessie Van Zant, of the Kansas School for the Blind, were lifted to the top of the table. They played several violin solos. The scene was affecting and all over the crowded house men and women were wiping their tears of sympathy. The only ones who did not seem more or less affected were the unfortunates themselves. Miss Keller smiled at the while the "twins" in their impassive way, fingered the strings of their instruments. The last number was a composition of their own, which the little fellows played in the same stoical fashion. At the close Miss Keller, impulsively rushed towards them, and feeling for the children, drew first one and then the other towards her in a close embrace, kissing their faces and fondling them.

A large bouquet of American beauty roses was handed to Miss Keller, over which she bent with a pleased smile. Two little Indian girls sat on the platform at the feet of Miss Keller, and in her nervous way, she soon discovered their presence, and when she was told who they were, she selected two roses and presented one to each.

There were seated on the platform President Francis, Miss Mary Perry, Miss Laura Perry, both sisters of Mrs. D. R. Francis; Miss Sullivan, who sat beside Miss Keller and constantly kept her informed of what was going on; Miss Wherry, Dr. J. M. Keller, of Hot Springs, and his wife, uncle and aunt of Miss Keller; Dr. Wm. Keller, of the City of Mexico; Jack Marcy, Dr. Dobyns and a few mutual friends.

In the afternoon Miss Keller visited the Philippine reservation. The party was taken in charge by Dr. Gustave Wederlin and Victor Hall. The "Isorete village" was the first visited and everything interested her, even insisting on feeling the skulls on the totem poles. The dances were in progress in the village, and she had many questions to ask about them. She was interested in the President Francis occupied very little time in his address of welcome, but after a few touching remarks, in which he showed how earnestly he appreciated the situation he introduced Miss Keller.

With a smile upon her lips she advanced and a breathless silence fell upon the audience. As Miss Keller spoke in a low voice natural to her, Miss Sullivan repeated the words:

"I had been asked to come here today," she said, "and lend my voice to what is being done in the world for the uplifting of those who struggle in unequal and untoward circumstances. All these great halls of machinery, power and art are the achievement of the strength of man when his arm is firm and his spirit unshaken. In the midst of so much mighty achievement and the presence of our convention here demonstrates that on this triumphant way man has not forgotten his weak brother. The many thousand people who have been invited to come here have been asked because of learning skill or contributions to the wealth and duty of the world. I come not for aught that I have done, but for what has been done for me; to raise me to the level of those who see and hear. I testify to what the good and strong have done for deprivation and infirmity. I bring my evidence that able men and women are doing their best to untangle the ears of deaf, open the eyes of the blind, put speech on dumb lips, bring light and intelligence to darkened minds. I enter with you into the communion of living speech and in the joy of speech, express my

QUESTION OF RATES HAS NOT YET BEEN DECIDED

Local Agents' Association of Fire Insurance Companies in the City

At the banquet of the local Fire Insurance Agents' association of the city of Janesville at the Myers house last evening the question of accepting the rates prescribed for Janesville risks by the Field Men's club of the state, the representatives of the Union Fire Insurance companies, which was to have been settled was left over until next week when another meeting will be held. The laws of Wisconsin give the local associations the right to regulate rates on risks but the companies who are trying now to raise these can refuse to take the business and in this way force the local agents to accept or lose their agency.

Cure for Bowed Legs.
A happy mother whose little boy's legs had been tightly bowed and had become straight, upon being congratulated told how the cure had been accomplished. It was by the simple method of riding a velocipede, thereby combining much pleasure for the little fellow with the treatment for his little limbs. This certainly seems an easy, inexpensive and pleasant way to cure a deformity that is quite common among children. It could do no harm to give it a trial.

GLEASON RESIGNS AS GENERAL AGENT

For the Northwestern Road in Janesville—Alva Hemmens May Succeed Him.

General Passenger Agent A. N. Gleason of the North-Western road has resigned the position he has held in this city for six years, the resignation to take effect on October 31. He expects to engage in other business in accordance with plans which he has had under advisement for some time. On the date on which he relinquishes his position Mr. Gleason will have completed a term of ten years as agent and general agent and a total of sixteen years in railroad work. With regard to the position that is being vacated in this city Alva Hemmens as agent, Mr. Gleason says: "During his long service he has worked up from caller to cashier and through this channel he has received his training. The wisdom of this policy of advancement was shown not so many years ago when our worthy competitors advanced Mr. Walter Johnson from the cashiership to the agency." Mr. Gleason is glad to say that he will continue to reside in Janesville.

Mr. Gleason had nothing to say for publication regarding his future work, but it was learned from friends that he will enter the employ of the Badger Planting this Mr. Gleason asked regarding this Mr. Gleason said he was stockholder in that company, and that his friends had urged him to devote his time to it and he thought he would. The company is one of the largest of its kind in the state and Mr. Gleason who is a heavy stockholder will have much to do with the management. The change from a monetary standpoint is in Mr. Gleason's favor.

As an employee of the railroad company Mr. Gleason has always been considered one of the most trusted and efficient on the payroll and his advancement from calling clerk to general agent has been steady and purely upon his merits. He first started on the road in Harvard in 1888 as seat clerk in the yards there. From that place he rose to be bill clerk and through the steps of cashier and agent in that city, then as agent at the North avenue station in Chicago, he climbed to the position of general agent from which place he is now resigning after six and a half years' service as such.

During his residence here Mr. Hobbs made many warm friends, who, while rejoicing that he is called to a larger field and larger responsibilities, nevertheless regret that it has been necessary for him to leave Janesville.

IT WILL KEEP

It is not always necessary to use a whole bottle of Scott's Emulsion. What is left will keep. We have seen a bottle of our Emulsion three years old that is still good. What other preparation of cod liver oil will keep that length of time? Scott's Emulsion is always reliable because it's always absolutely pure.

Miss Bull laughed bitterly. "My sister knows perfectly well that I live here, but it suits her to disown the relationship. It is my wish also, and for that reason I changed my name."

"But if you hated Mrs. Jersey?"

"I did—I did, but she was the only person who could talk about Mr. Vane. She loved him also, but not as I did, and we have talked for hours in this very room. We quarreled, certainly, but at times she was very nice. I miss our talks greatly."

"Did she know who killed him?"

Miss Bull shook her head. "No. She never knew. No one ever knew. I sometimes thought that Violet—but she declared that he left her at the door of the ballroom."

"Miss Bull," said George, growing impatient of this disconnected recital, "will you go on with your story?"

"Story—yes, it is a story—a sad romance." She passed her hand again over her forehead as though weeded and resumed with an effort. "Mr. Vane left Como and came to Milan; afterward he went on to San Remo. My father, who liked his society, joined him there. We stepped at the Hotel d'Angleterre. Eliza Stokes was a housemaid there, and it was while attending to our bedroom that she told me she had been your nurse. She was a large, stout girl, with red cheeks. As Mrs. Jersey she was vastly improved, but as a girl—Miss Bull shuddered in a prim way and continued: "Yet, she had her admirers. A waiter, called George Rates, wished to marry her. She had accepted him, but while in the sight of Mr. Vane she could not love him."

"How do you mean?"

"Well, Eliza used to spy on Mr. Vane and follow him in his walks. She was quite infatuated about him. I told Mr. Vane, and he kept away from the hotel. And George Rates was jealous of Eliza's love for Mr. Vane. But he never loved her, nor Violet—he loved no one but me."

"And he told you so at the masked ball?"

"Yes. There was to be a masked ball, and both Violet and I were anxious to go. We made a friend of Eliza, and she got us two blue dominoes. That we might recognize one another we each wore a sprig of yellow holly. My father was supposed to know nothing about the matter, but we told a young Oxford cousin of ours. He met us at the ball and afterward took Violet away. I found Mr. Vane, and we danced together. He did not know me at first, but afterward, when we went into a quiet room, I unmasked. He was vexed at first that I and Violet should come to the ball unattended, as he said my father would be so angry, which was quite true. Then he told me that he loved me and asked me to become his wife. I accepted, and he kissed me."

"Did he speak of his first wife—of my mother?"

"Yes. He told me how dearly he had loved her."

"Did he say where the marriage was celebrated?"

"No. I never thought to ask him. I always thought there was a marriage—why should I not?—until I later heard that Lord Derrington denied that such had taken place. But that was after I came out of the asylum," added Miss Bull, with a troubled air, "so it might be my fancy."

"No. It is true. Lord Derrington did deny the marriage, but he now recognizes that it took place. We wish to find where."

"I cannot help you, Mr. Brendon. Mr. Vane never mentioned it to me. He told me that he loved me. Then he went away to get me an ice and said he would take me home and return for Violet. I waited, but as he did not appear I went to look for him. He was gone."

"With your sister?"

"Yes," said Miss Bull, clenching her fists. "Violet overheard a part of our conversation. She had just come down from the box of the Marchesa Belmont."

"That was where she unmasked and Mr. Ireland recognized her."

"She must have seen me with Mr. Vane," continued Miss Bull, taking no notice of this interruption, "so she stole behind us and heard what we were to one another. Then she slipped on her mask and followed Mr. Vane. She said she did not want an ice, but that she desired to go home at once. Mr. Vane wanted to wait for her."

"For Violet?"

"Yes. He thought that I had run after him, and as Violet wore a blue domino with the sprig of holly he fancied she was I."

"I understand. So he took her home."

"She said he left her at the door and then came back to look for Violet," said Miss Bull contemptuously. "She disguised her voice, and he quite thought she was myself. But from what Mr. Ireland said, Mr. Vane saw Violet home to the gates of the hotel. I waited for a time, and as your father did not come back I ran home alone. Violet was in our bedroom and said that Mr. Vane had left her at the door of the ballroom and had gone back for me. Then the next morning we heard of the murder. I never knew until you told me how Violet had managed to get Mr. Vane away from me."

"She tricked you," said George sympathizingly.

"She tricked every one. When I heard of your father's death I fell very ill. The world became a blank to me. When I came to myself I was in an asylum. Then I grew better and was let out. My father died, and an annuity was allowed to me. I heard about Mrs. Jersey taking this house, and wishing for some one to talk to about your father, I came here, and here I have been ever since."

"Then you do not know who killed my father?"

"No," Miss Bull shook her head. "He was struck down on the parade when returning to the ballroom. It must have been after he saw my sister home."

"Do you think Mrs. Ward knows the truth?"

"She might. Perhaps some one followed, and Violet might have been mistaken for some other person. I know there was a married woman in San Remo deeply in love with Mr. Vane."

"What an attractive man he must have been!"

"Oh, he was the handsomest man in the world," cried Miss Bull, with genuine enthusiasm, "and so kind! No wonder Eliza Stokes loved him. But he loved no one but me—no one but me!"

"What did Eliza Stokes say when she heard of his death?"

"Oh, she almost went out of her mind! I did altogether," said poor Miss Bull, with a wan smile. "And as they found her a nuisance in the hotel she went away. George Rates went also."

"Did she marry him?"

"No. I asked her when I met her here as Mrs. Jersey. She said that she returned to England, and that Rates had been run over and killed in the street. She then went to America and married Mr. Jersey. He died and left her some money. Then she set up this house."

"So she said nothing of the annuity from Lord Derrington?"

"No. It wasn't to her interest to do so. She could hold her tongue when she liked."

George rose to go. "Thank you for telling me so much, Miss Bull," he said. "What was the name of the foreign woman who loved my father?"

"Oh, she was a common woman who kept a shop. Velez was the name."

"Velez," cried George, and added to himself, "So that is how Lola knows."

CHAPTER XIX.

AS George stepped out of the front door he came face to face with Bawdsey, who was mounting the steps. The man seemed excited and carried a carelessly folded newspaper which he had apparently been reading.

"I didn't expect to see you here," he said, with a certain degree of roughness.

"I did not know that this house was interdicted to me," replied Brendon sharply. "I am glad to meet you, however, as I wish to have a few words."

"I am too busy to give you any time," retorted Bawdsey, and tried to enter the house.

"Nevertheless you will give me a quarter of an hour," said George, blocking the doorway with his stolid form. "What I have to say cannot be left until a more convenient period."

"I tell you, I am busy, Mr. Brendon."

"And I tell you that I intend to leave this interview," rejoined Brendon imperiously. "You talk a great deal about gratitude, Bawdsey, yet you are unwilling to put yourself out for me in the least degree."

Bawdsey became penitent at once. "It is true, Mr. Brendon, but I am very worried." He cast a glance at the newspaper in his hand. "However, you have first call upon my time."

No more words passed. Bawdsey mounted the stairs and led George into a well remembered room. Brendon took a chair, and Bawdsey, with an anxious look, threw himself into another. The man's face was flushed, his red hair was in disorder, and his eyes were bright. As a rule he was calm and self-controlled, so George conjectured that something particularly important must have occurred to upset him. "I had a conversation with Lord Derrington the other evening," George said deliberately, "and we talked of you."

"Then you heard no good of me," replied Bawdsey, with a sneer. "Lord Derrington does not like me."

"That matters little. No liking can exist between a man in Lord Derrington's position and his paid servant."

"Oh, you call me that, do you, sir?"

"What else are you? Lord Derrington engaged you as his agent to watch me, and that you have done."

"Not lately. I have given you a free hand."

"In any case I have a free hand," said George loftily. "You were grateful enough for my service in saving your life to release me from your espionage, but had you not done so I should have taken means to put a stop to your dogging my footsteps."

"You would not have known had I not told you, Mr. Brendon."

"Oh, yes, I should. In any case, I should have seen my grandfather, and he would have told me."

"No, sir. He is your enemy."

"That is where you are wrong, Bawdsey. He is my friend and intends to recognize me as his heir."

"Has he learned where the marriage took place?" asked Bawdsey, starting from his seat and again glancing anxiously at the newspaper, which lay on a small table at his elbow.

"No. We have yet to find that out. But he is quite satisfied from the hints of the late Mrs. Jersey that a marriage did take place."

"What! What means did you take to force him to recognize you?"

"I used no force at all," responded Brendon very dryly.

"Lord Derrington would not climb down unless he were made to."

"As a matter of fact he did. The olive branch was held out by him. All this is none of your business, Mr. Bawdsey, and I only tell it to you to clear the ground for what I am about to say."

"First, Mr. Brendon, I should like to know your exact position."

"Oh, that is easily explained, and there is no reason why you should not know what all London will know soon. Lord Derrington will join with me in searching for the register of marriage, and meanwhile will recognize me as his grandson and the heir to his estates. In a fortnight I leave my Kensington rooms and take up my residence with Lord Derrington in St. Giles square. Then I shall assume my real name of George Vane."

"And you will marry Miss Ward, I suppose?"

"That is entirely my business," said George placidly. "You will gain nothing by insolence, Bawdsey."

The man rose with a wounded air. "Upon my word, Mr. Vane," he said, giving George his correct name to show that he recognized his new position, "I have not the slightest intention of being insolent. I am glad for your sake that things are as they are, and pleased for my own, since Lola may now give up thoughts of you and turn to me."

"That's all very well, Bawdsey," said Brendon quietly. "You profess a great friendship for me, but how can I trust you?"

"Why should you doubt me?" asked Bawdsey, still wounded.

"I can only judge the future by the past, and since you are quite ready to play Lord Derrington false—"

"Who says that?" cried the man, sitting down.

"I say so. Lord Derrington has told me all."

"All what?" demanded Bawdsey, willfully ignorant.

"All that took place on the night when you came to this house to impersonate him."

Bawdsey laughed, and his face cleared. "If that is your disagreeable business, sir, I can easily put that to rights."

"Can you explain why you drugged him, why you threatened him?"

"I did not threaten him."

"Lord Derrington informed me that you threatened to get him into trouble. That was why he consulted me, and that is why I have come to tell you that if you fight Lord Derrington you will fight me also."

"Don't press too hard, Mr. Brendon. I am willing to do you a service, and

EMPHATIC TALK

The Kind That Carries Conviction to Every Janesville Reader.

Conviction must follow such emphatic proof as is given here. The testimony of Janesville residents should satisfy the most skeptical. Here is a Janesville case. Read it and see if doubt can exist in the face of this evidence.

Mr. E. T. Fish, of 355 Ravine street, proprietor of the Fish Dray Line says: "When I was twenty years of age I fell injuring my back, and ever since that I was troubled more or less with a dull aching pain across the loins. It never laid me up but it was often painful and annoying. Of late years I have gone to a physician every six months and had myself thoroughly examined under the impression that there might be something wrong with my kidneys. The diagnosis always resulting in the physician claiming these organs were sound, but as the pains existed when I happened to notice in our Janesville papers that Doan's Kidney Pills were guaranteed to cure just such troubles I procured a box at the People's Drug store and took them. Doan's Kidney Pills are a good preparation. My back has not ached since I used them. I have heard others speak very complimentary of them and if I did not know their merit and required such a medicine I would consider it a favor if some one suggested their use to me. For this reason I endorse them."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the U. S. Remember the name, Doan's, and take no other.
